R. B. Burns, chief engineer of the Santa Fe Pacific, was shaking hands among his old friends in town Tuesday.

Have you seen them? Well, you should. Why should we go abroad to get fashions when we have a leader right here at home? On Wednesday evening the Hon. Henry Ashurst came striding down Williams avenue, and immediately all eyes were turned toward his nether extremities, which appeared to be incased in the finest of white kid shoes. Nearer inspection disclosed the fact that they were of the lawn tennis species, but that did not account for their white appearance, which had a most dazzling effect upon the eyes. Henry says "Tom, the Shine," is to blame, but Tom strictly avers that Henry is simply advertising a new grade of lime.

Major and Mrs. McClintock, of Phoenix, returned to Arizona Monday from Colorado, where they went to attend the annual reunion of Roosevelt's Rough Riders, of which the Major is retiring president. Tuesday, Mrs. McClintock and Miss Anne Rhodes started by train for a two weeks' trip into the Grand Canyon region. They will visit the Berry and Bright Angel trails and thereafter take private conveyance to Tobe-Kobe trail and into Cataract Canyon, where they will spend several days sightseeing and botanizing. Miss Rhodes, whose home is on Staten Island, New York, is a lecturer of note, whose trips and whose lectures have covered many of the most interesting points of the western continent. One of her favorite lectures is that upon Arizona, for which she accumulated data while here two years ago. Regularly employed by the New York lecture bureau, it is doubtful if any other agent is more effective in bringing Arizona before the notice of the interested eastern public. On her present trip she will add to her lectures one on the mines of the southwest.
